

Please don't change any legislation concerning the telephone privacy laws Indiana has adopted. Instead, you would be better off adopting the same laws nationwide that Indiana has instituted. In Indiana asking to be included on the no-call list is strictly optional. Those not bothered by the solicitors may still receive calls.

It is so nice not receiving those annoying calls every evening and all weekend. Before I asked to be put on the no-call list, I would receive anywhere from 12-15 calls per month. Since I have been on the list, I can only remember receiving 2 calls.

If I am seeking the services that most of these calls promote, I will research and contact providers myself when I am interested and ready.

Indiana State Attorney General Steve Carter has done a great service to the citizens of Indiana not wishing to be bothered by these annoying calls. Please think about the rights of those individuals not wanting to be bothered by these telemarketers.
